

HANDHELD TRANSCEIVERS

ICOM IC-R6 HANDHELD RECEIVER

Retaining the basic features of the very popular IC-R5, the IC-R6 has a new design and new features. 100 kHz - 1309.995 MHz* wideband coverage. While the IC-R6 receives an ultra wideband frequency range, the radio provides superior sensitivity and receiver characteristics that is insusceptible to interference. Amateur stations, AM, FM, short wave broadcasts, TV audio* and a variety of utility communications can be caught and listened to. Frequency range depends on version. Analog TV audio only. Cannot decode digital TV audio. The IC-R6 has 100 channels per second high speed scan capability*. With the supplied rechargeable Ni-MH cells (1400mAh x 2), the IC-R6 provides up to 15 hours of continuous receive capability*. At 50 mW output using external speaker. 1300 memory channels with 22 memory banks. The VSC opens the squelch only when a modulated signal is detected and ignores unmodulated beat noise. The IC-R6 can be powered by rechargeable Ni-MH cells, or with alkaline batteries. Run the IC-R6 using the AC adapter, BC-196S, or opt for a cigarette lighter cable, CP-18. When used the optional drop-in charger stand BC-194 with the AC adapter or cigarette lighter cable, you can easily start charging the Ni-MH cells, while eliminating the need to connect the power source to the DC power jack of the receiver.
